Respuesta modelo:

- 1) Hi Tom, thanks ever so much for the warm welcome! Yes, I'm brand new to the group. I tend to write first thing in the morning when my mind is clearest, though I'm perfectly flexible. It'd be lovely to meet up for a writing session sometime.
- 2) A group dinner sounds absolutely perfect, count me in without hesitation! There's no better way to break the ice than over good food, and it beats trying to chat during a busy session. Just name the date and I'll make sure I'm free.
- 3) Honestly, please don't give it a second thought, everyone is daunted at first, myself very much included. This group is remarkably welcoming and people go out of their way to support newcomers. Simply come along to the first session and I've no doubt you'll feel right at home.

Respuesta modelo:

EMAIL 1 — Informal (to a friend, ~50 words)

Hi Sara,

Have you caught wind of the new 8 a.m. slot? I must say I'm pretty dismayed, it's a brutal hour after a full day's work. Are you minded to carry on? I was thinking we could lobby for an evening option. Curious to hear your take!

Elena

EMAIL 2 — Formal (to the club manager, ~120-150 words)

Dear Mr Davies,

I am writing in connection with the recent rescheduling of our sessions to 8 a.m. on weekdays. While I have no doubt the decision was taken with the best of intentions, I feel duty-bound to raise a concern shared by a number of us.

For members in full-time employment, an early-morning session is exceptionally difficult to attend, and I fear this may lead to a marked drop in turnout. A great many of us joined precisely because the evening sessions dovetailed so neatly with our working lives.

Might I respectfully suggest retaining at least one evening session each week, in parallel with the new morning times? I am confident such a compromise would accommodate a considerably broader membership.

Thank you for giving this your consideration.

Yours sincerely,
Elena Navarro
